

You want sex but your partner is too drunk to talk and to give consent.

Your partner said no last time but tonight you hope they will say nothing and go with the flow.

You intend to have sexual activity no matter what.

As you are kissing, your partner pulls away from you.

Your partner has passed out.

Your partner is 15 and
has said they want to have sex with you.

You are not sure
what the other person
wants.

You feel like you
are getting mixed signals.

Your partner asked you to bring a condom but is now saying they don't want to have sex.

Your friends told you your new partner is well known to be 'up for it'.

You have not talked about what you want to do sexually with your partner.

You assume that you will do the same thing as before.

You have been with your partner a long time and you have a trusting relationship.

You're at a party and your partner agrees to go upstairs to a bedroom with you.

have talked about it and you both feel ready to begin a sexual relationship.

You know your partner respects you and is happy to stop whenever you ask.

You are married and
you want sex with your partner.

You and your partner
have agreed about how far you want to go.

Your partner says
that you're hurting
them.

Your partner was very keen earlier but now
they are asking you to stop.

